FROM OUR TRAVELING CORRESPONDENT

FROM PORTLAND TO WALLULA

STEAMER YAKIMA, June 2 1865.

There was a genuine air of business at [illegible] a civilized and enlightened tone to the bustle that prevailed on the wharf of the O. S. N. Co. yesterday morning preparatory to the departure of the Wilson G. Hunt on her customary trip up the Columbia river. The late arrival of the Brother Jonathan secured a crowd of passengers, who were strangers to the country and who in addition to the unusual waking at 4 A. M., which brought the yawning multitude in most unwilling humor to encounter the raw and misty morning [illegible] constant questions that manifested lamentable ignorance as to the geography of their whereabouts, or rather as to the whereabouts of their geography. One insisted that the Hunt ran through to the Dalles, another wanted to see Oregon City, and the falls of the Willamette and passed them! One intelligent looking chap was betting wild on the day of the week, and of course lost. There was universal good nature, and no end of confusion, which was heightened by sundry arrivals of stock, and the bleating of over 500 head of sheep, which came pressing on, or rushing madly off again, to the dismay of the hands and the intense delight of the by-standers. At last, the quadrupeds were all aboard and safely penned amidships, and the heterogeneous mixture of bipeds, representing different races and tongues, as well as various grades and classes of society, were either safely on board, after mad rushing, or deposited on shore after their last frantic greetings to departing friends. It is a sure test of friendship to be at the wharf at five, to bid friends adieu, and it is a miracle—strange to say of frequent performance. The tolling of the steamer's bell is music to the passenger, and as it gave its last clang, we were off, soon under good headway, charging down the full and overflowing river, that gave to the neighboring sloughs and swales, the look of inland seas, and left the still sleeping city more with the appearance of being afloat in a drizzling cloud, upon the overflowing waters, than safely anchored by their side.

UNDER WAY

We were off without more serious accident than the carrying away of the newsboy who cries in early hours—"the morning OREGONIAN with all the particular news of the week" and who having sundry copies unsold, considered himself "bound for a market," eventually selling the last copy at the Cascades, where with more than the usual newsboy prudence, he invested his capital in salmon at great bargains.

Down the Willamette, the river at its full looks delightful. The timber in all the bottoms is at its greenest and the islands and banks all the way long after we passed Vancouver had a luxuriance of foliage that reminded me of the tropics. The farmers along shore seemed to be doing swimmingly in a most literal sense.

Vancouver sat like a duck on the water. Its lower wharves were submerged, and the river was, in fact, at its doors. From the deck of the steamer we looked down on the nearer portion of the town, and had in beautiful prospective, its quiet homes and garrison buildings rising on the green slopes at a little distance. Above the town in the middle ground, were the old, dilapidated remains of the Hudson Bay Co.'s once important establishment, where, before our day was dreamed of, the great fur trade of the northwest was carried on in part. Soon we found the hills drawing nearer to the river, saw them change into rough and rocky mountain-sides in such fantastic shapes, that such points as Rooster Rock, Pulpit Rock and Castle Rock, have already become famous, while our Cape Horn on the Columbia is even now celebrated. The Hudson river will need to fear a rival in the picturesque, when Bierstadt, Taft and Brink, have taught the greater beauties of the Columbia to their pencils.

AT THE CASCADES.

Climbing the full river until we see close before us the foaming breakers that form the cascades of the Columbia, we then mount the iron horse, and with rush and puffing hoofs, course over the mountain side six miles, to where the beautiful and commodious Oneonta is waiting to receive us. The railroad and steamboat are in striking contrast with the Indian fishing village which is found upon the bank. The works at the Cascades Railroad are important and most creditable to the enterprise that has accomplished so much good on the river. It is a luxury to travel on the Columbia. No route of its length on the continent can afford equal variety of scenery. Passing through the rich bottoms of the Willamette and Columbia, one suddenly glides in among the peaks, forests and waterfalls of the wildest mountain ranges in America. At the Cascades portage one can contrast the wild upheavings of mountains with the mad tossing of the great river, beside all of which courses the locomotive, one of the greatest achievements of human genius. Resuming the river again, we glide among the mountains for some fifty miles until the hills come in sight once more. Not by any means, hills like those we left below, for we have changed to other climate and differing soil, and the eastern foothills of the great mountain barrier are carpeted with the bunch grass that tempts the taste of "the cattle on a thousand hills."

THE DALLES

Is a point of stirring interest. Remaining there over night I recognized many improvements made since last fall. In the evening I heard Mr. Garfielde who happened to be in town, deliver one of the most eloquent and patriotic addresses I ever listened to. I heard him once when I could neither agree with, nor commend him, but this time he spoke by the light of events, appreciating their irresistible logic, and yielding to its force all the prejudices of a lifetime at the bidding of patriotic impulse. There was no partisanship in it, but there was sound and eloquent patriotism. I do not believe Portland could so easily assemble the hundreds that turned out last evening at the summons of the limping negro bell ringer who announced the meeting at the Dalles. Newell I believe was not there, and [illegible] attribute his absence either to his being busy sele[illegible] a location for the mint, attending to his divorce suit, or to some attempt to practice under the code after opening it at random at the chapter of criminal law that [illegible] uses his female friends—if he has any for he seems to have no other there. The stage had just come in from Canyon City in 42 hours on the road, having been only some 33 hours actually travelling. Mr. Mayhew, agent of the stage company, informed me that an effort was being made to extend the line to Boise City and so connect with the overland mail which it is to be hoped will prove successful.

ABOUT THE DALLES

Another early rousing, and we are puffing along the river bank bound for Celilo. The fourteen miles are traversed in half an hour during which time we have a beautiful view of the Great and Little Dalles of the Columbia, where the broad river [illegible] tosses and rushes about in all the majesty of a first class water power. The [illegible] or another No. 1 river steamer is waiting for us and we are soon stemming the river again, gradually leaving the high bluffs behind, and changing to shores that become lower and tamer until it seems as if we coursed along through [illegible] plains that only need to be fertile to possess boundless attractions, but we speed along through a desert with no vestige of civilization in all the view. I have said it is a luxury to travel on the Columbia, and I must not omit the mention of sundry good—nay sumptuous meals provided for us on every boat. It is no disparagement [illegible] to say that the Oregon steamboats are not excelled by any [illegible] in the State.

[illegible] is an excellent point. No one can doubt it [illegible] to see the business look its people carry [illegible] with them.

The burning of Idaho City has stimulated trade at this point already and will probably result in a rush of [illegible] to [illegible] below to that point. [illegible] has just gone down [illegible] California after making the trip from [illegible] to Boise City with a view to examining the [illegible] practicability. He was twenty [illegible] days making the trip on horseback and reports [illegible] the route for heavy teams. He returns [illegible] by the Columbia river and speaks [illegible] route from here to Boise. All that the people of Oregon have to do to command the great and profitable trade of Idaho, is to develop [illegible] roads that lead to it. Of course hundreds and thousands will go overland [illegible] California and Nevada but a great travel and [illegible] trade belongs to the Columbia river and only the supine conduct of those who [illegible] this trade can drive it from them. I leave the [illegible] people to ponder the aforesaid reflection.

What is Free Speech?

[illegible] they have not [illegible] while continually employing these dangerous modes of speech they still persistently keep up a puling cry about lost liberty and insist that their Constitutional right of free speech has been wrested from them and is no more. They [illegible] their language [illegible] Of late, the Democratic [illegible] of Oregon are unhappy because they are not permitted to rejoice over the murder of President Lincoln. And because a few [illegible] villains have been dealt with severely and yet justly for this grave misdemeanor, it is discovered that the rights of speech are infringed and a Constitutional guarantee violated. In other words, they claim it as a right of free speech to incite murder and feel that liberty is lost if this privilege is denied them. If men have a right to express their delight because of the assassination of President Lincoln, they have an equal right to encourage murderers to take the life of President Johnson, for the latter is following in the course of his predecessor, and if the country was advantaged by the death of the former, the death of the latter would be an equal gain.

But all these notions about the rights of speech are futile and false. The first article of the amendments to the Constitution of the United States provides that "no law shall be made abridging the freedom of speech." In the view of those who delight in the President's murder and in similar crimes, this is interpreted to mean that all have an unlimited right to speak, write and print whatever they choose, with no power lodged anywhere to call them to accountability for the misemployment of this privilege. They seem not to know that the right of free speech is liable to be abused, and that while the Constitution grants this privilege to the fullest extent, its [illegible] is not exempt from punishment any who misuse the right or who may employ it to the detriment of the peace of society. While this Constitutional enactment does not hinder any from speaking or publishing what they please, it does not deprive the legally constituted authorities of the power to punish all who use language prejudicial to the public peace.

Some centuries ago, it was the custom in England to require all compositions that were designed for publication to be submitted to the inspection of officers appointed by the crown, and if the writings were deemed to contain anything of a seditious character or were in any way objectionable, these odious features were to be expunged before the work could be published. Finally, by means of the enlightened efforts of the liberal minded Milton, and of others who had a true perception of liberty, this restriction was withdrawn. A free right to publish was granted without the espionage of government; yet it was never dreamed that the abusers of this right should be permitted to pass without molestation. Our Constitutional enactment is designed to answer a similar or precisely the same purpose. Men may speak and print what they please, but if their language tends to the subversion of government or disturbs the peace of society, they are to be held answerable for what they do. No government ever yet existed which could, consistently with its safety, permit malcontents to assail it at the most critical junctures with a full torrent of licentious invective. To pursue such a course as this is not the right of the citizen; to deprive him of the power to do so is no abridgment of his freedom of speech. It cannot be too often repeated that license is not liberty. It does not cohere with any proper idea of freedom for the malcontent to claim the right to use the most violent and dangerous language, without restraint or punishment.

These crude and false ideas of free speech which are an outgrowth of the insolent manners that have prevailed during the last few years, needs the application of some corrective influence. No other mistaken notions are so vicious in their nature and effects. Of old free speech was not tolerated at all. This was a most unwise and oppressive restraint. But the fact of its removal furnishes no reason why men should insist upon the other extreme, by claiming it as a right of free speech to provoke disturbances without a liability to be punished therefor. Free speech, like every other privilege which belongs to the sum of our liberties, consists only in doing what the laws permit, and not in acting with rude violence in defiance of all their sanctions.

A NATIONAL PARTY.—A day or two since we chanced to fall into a conversation with an intelligent laboring man of this city. He gave an exposition of the doctrine of National politics with a clearness that would enable even a blear-eyed Copperhead to comprehend it. He said he had formerly been a Democrat, that he voted in 1860 for Breckinridge and for that equal traitor Lane, and that he then valued himself on the fact that he was a member of a party which had its representatives in every State while their opponents were confined to one section only. The Charleston Mercury, he remarked, circulated all over the land. "But," added he, "I never stopped to think that the New York Tribune could not go into the South; [illegible] Southern men," he continued, "could [illegible] go North and make speeches as they chose, but I never reflected that Northern men were prohibited from opening their lips when they visited the South. Now I know that the boast of the democracy that it was a National party was a sham. Papers of every [illegible] may now circulate both North and South [illegible] may speak [illegible] sentiments at Charleston and Montgomery [illegible] as at Chicago and Boston [illegible] accomplish these results are the only National party [illegible] have always been sectional [illegible]

IMPROVEMENTS.—[illegible] we do that [illegible] would be exceedingly dull were it not for the vast [illegible] of improvement constantly made about our [illegible] have had few [illegible] of anything [illegible] the whole season [illegible] but improvements [illegible] and may still find work. [illegible] the number of new residences, the street [illegible] at once with [illegible] largely by the [illegible] population [illegible] in course of erection than were ever building at one time since the town [illegible] among the number this year [illegible] large proportion [illegible] improvements [illegible] There are many [illegible] by the rascality of the [illegible] and their work will [illegible] of Pine and Front streets, on Monday [illegible] with Capt [illegible] front street, just above Pine [illegible] of uniform size and style [illegible] The new [illegible] a fine brick [illegible] Northrup & Co., [illegible] R. Wiberg, Walter Moffatt [illegible] and others propose erecting new blocks [illegible] Front street the present season. The [illegible] to give the city the finest [illegible] decent street. That we must [illegible]

[illegible]—At 10 o'clock yesterday [illegible] of Col. Wilder, on Seventh street [illegible] The alarm was [illegible] given, and the [illegible] turned out [illegible] the difficulty of getting water, the [illegible] supplied [illegible] and the family [illegible] o'clock [illegible] through the [illegible] and the firemen [illegible] In Owyhee [illegible] his family were [illegible] great loss or damage to their furniture [illegible] In the next [illegible] owner of a [illegible] silver mine in North [illegible] with a homestead [illegible] before the [illegible] the telegraph [illegible] high treason [illegible] the development of the [illegible] It is a little thing that all his goods went [illegible] the wreck of the [illegible] golden state. A smaller thing [illegible] Upon investigation it was found that the [illegible] by a botched job of brick work on the rear [illegible] chimney, which [illegible] in the frame and boards of the [illegible] does not exceed $300 [illegible] all told. [illegible] have been [illegible] the firemen, two other buildings [illegible] burned had not the flames been subdued when they were. The property is owned by Mr. [illegible] firm of Eaze & Stinson.

[illegible] THE WHITE HOUSE.—Messrs. [illegible] made arrangements for putting on a line of [illegible] from the corner of Washington and Front [illegible] the White House. And Mr. Williams, the [illegible] of the popular resort six miles from the city, [illegible] of the time of departure and fare each way in [illegible] This is a very excellent opportunity [illegible] city for a short time, and those who desire to [illegible] cannot fail to find this fun [illegible] the murderous [illegible] The White House [illegible] have its cottages, its walks, its drives [illegible] the sweet enchantments of green, trees, flowers [illegible] and statues, to make the happy [illegible] and forget that the world is a desert, if we [illegible] it for a time, until it becomes [illegible]

[illegible]—There is some apprehension that the [illegible] land route across the continent is going to injure [illegible] From a friend we learn that on the 21st of [illegible] than three thousand teams were at St. Jo [illegible] start for the Pacific coast, and that is but one [illegible] points on the Eastern border of the Great Plains [illegible] out of such expeditions. The residents of [illegible] should take the matter under calm considera[illegible] it shall too seriously affect their interests [illegible] the way of New York, the Isthmus, San Fran[illegible] the Columbia river. Our informant came by [illegible] route.

[illegible].—The Alta says that the Sacramento [illegible] a new theatre in that city. The Bee replies by [illegible] want nothing of the kind, and further that [illegible] is plenty good enough, but it should [illegible] and in proper repair, that is all [illegible] Here the demand is pretty much the same [illegible] building for a theatre, and it is gen[illegible] miserably kept. It is stuck down in [illegible] two stables and is generally [illegible] of the great plays of "the man who wrote [illegible]"

[illegible] DAY.—Yesterday was a sweater, dry and dusty [illegible] had a decided fall, and [illegible] a sudden [illegible] the streets about noon, after a slight intermis[illegible] consequent upon a sudden spring of the [illegible] in a particular spot on Seventh street. The [illegible] of vigor that compelled people to partake [illegible] in linen fabrics continued until the [illegible] o'clock, when it moderated and became [illegible] quiet, but the indications were favorable to [illegible] to-day.

[illegible] WANTED.—A petition was [illegible] granted [illegible] recently for a fire cistern at the junction [illegible] and Montgomery streets, notwithstanding a [illegible] destroyed by fire in that vicinity a few months [illegible] for the want of water. There is a great need of [illegible] not only in the Third Ward, but in the Second, [illegible] yesterday. It is money well invested—[illegible] fire cisterns. Give the "boys" [illegible] and [illegible] drown any fire.

[illegible] RIVER MINES.—Our friend [illegible] Day, late [illegible] Wilson G. Hunt, has returned [illegible] Creek, and is stopping for a few day in the [illegible] of the opinion that the above named mines [illegible] astonish the world by their productiveness and [illegible] that people have just begun to prospect [illegible] diggings—striking something new and rich [illegible] week. He returns to Granite and will make [illegible] a home for some time to come.

[illegible] No Cows."—The issue in the Third Ward [illegible] or no cows at the pending city election[illegible] who keep a dairy on old principles, will hang for [illegible] privilege of letting their horned stock molest [illegible] they are for cows. The opponents wish [illegible] live stock, loose horses, cows and "cattle" [illegible] from running at large within the city limits—[illegible] the anti-cow party, and we go in for them. [illegible] the cows," is the economical apothegm for [illegible]

[illegible] OF STAVES.—Why cannot oak staves be furnished [illegible] city in sufficient quantities at least to supply the [illegible] for our own home manufacturing [illegible] is a query. The best grained oak known [illegible] barrels, abounds in this section of country [illegible] yet the Breweries are compelled to wait for [illegible] San Francisco. Is this creditable to our enterprise?

[illegible].—We hear rumors of late discoveries in the [illegible] district, which promises to create some excite[illegible] but are yet without any particulars regarding [illegible] A friend who is interested in Santiam promises us [illegible] as soon as he is able to obtain it.

[illegible].—A walk yesterday afternoon past the [illegible] of Col. Chapman, convinced us of the [illegible] cultivated garden over the field of nature for delicious [illegible] He has a most elegant patch, and takes [illegible] in them, and during the next few days will [illegible] sumptuously from them.

[illegible].—The steamer [illegible] is being [illegible] at [illegible] street and going some changes, by [illegible] decks materially raised. It will be [illegible] Hereafter a man with a stove-pipe hat [illegible] can enter the main deck without fear [illegible]

[illegible] NIGHT.—We were [illegible] yesterday [illegible] that the fire alarm of Monday night was [illegible] by the burning of a portion of a [illegible] on A street. The fire was put [illegible]

[illegible] OF JULY.—At the last regular meeting of [illegible] Engine Company No. 2, of this city, the [illegible] resolved to have a parade in uniform on the [illegible] of July, "celebration or no celebration."

[illegible] Sierra Nevada will sail from San Fran[illegible] for Portland to-day at [illegible]

[illegible]. It is [illegible] to make grateful mention [illegible] Capt. Wilder and family, of the [illegible] [illegible] on yesterday. Capt. W. [illegible] of Oxyhee and [illegible] the accident to his home he will [illegible] that [illegible] kind friends [illegible] aid, that really the [illegible]

To The Firemen.—We, the undersigned, wish to [illegible] our obligations to the Fire Department for the [illegible] and efficient services rendered by them at the fire [illegible] prevented great destruction of our property yes[illegible] We appreciate the worth of the firemen under [illegible] and make grateful acknowledgment [illegible] to them in a body.

A WORD TO SMOKERS.—'Tis not our intention to preach a reform against the growing and seemingly use of the weed, for it is a luxurious comfort. What gentleman, we ask, old or young who is addicted to this habit of enjoying himself behind a good Havana particularly after a hearty meal will dispute us. We speak from experience for we often indulge in a good cigar ourselves, but what we wish to suggest is, try that justly popular fragrant, convenient and efficacious Dentifrice SOZODONT, just the thing after smoking; removes instantly the unpleasant taste and odors attendant on the use of tobacco, its refreshingly agreeable and leaves the mouth cool and sweet.

All Druggists sell it: price 75 cents per bottle.

A Universal Medicine.—By what we eat, by the air we breathe, or by the water we drink, we are made sick, because these effects end by producing impurity of blood. To regain health we must purify the blood by the organs of the stomach and bowels; these organs must be continued in the regular performance of that duty which nature has assigned them, and should they be any impediment, to what does experience point? THE FLORENCE
Sewing Machines
ARE NOW UNIVERSALLY ACKNOWLEDGED TO BE BY FAR
THE MOST SIMPLY CONSTRUCTED
Easily Managed,
HANDSOMELY FURNISHED
and Durable
FAMILY SEWING MACHINE,
NOW IN USE.

Possessing the Most Desirable Points of all other First-Class Machines, it Surpasses them by the Simplicity of its Construction, and the Ease and Facility with which it Performs a Greater Variety of Work than all other Machines Combined.

IT HEMS, FELLS, GATHERS, BRAIDS, QUILTS and Cords, and Sews a Ruffle at the same time.

We claim for the FLORENCE the following advantages over any and all Sewing Machines:

It makes four different stitches, the lock, knot, double lock and double knot, on one and the same Machine. Each stitch being alike on both sides of the fabric.

It has the reversible feed motion, which enables the operator, by simple turning a thumb screw, to have the work run either to the right or left, to stay any part of the seam, or fasten the ends of seams, without turning the fabric.

Changing the length of stitch, and from one kind of stitch to another, can readily be done while the Machine is in motion.

Every stitch is perfect in itself, making the seam secure and uniform.

It is almost noiseless and can be used where quiet is necessary.

Its motions are all positive, there are no springs to get out of order, and its simplicity enables the most inexperienced to operate it.

It will not oil the dress of the operator, as all its machinery is on the top of the table.

It is the most rapid sewer in the world, making five stitches to each revolution.

Its stitch is the wonder of all, because of its combining elasticity, strength and beauty.

It does the heaviest or finest work with equal facility, without change of tension or machinery.

Every Machine has one of Jenck's patent hemmers attached (the right to use which we control) enabling the operator to turn any width of hem desired.

There is no other Machine which will do so large a range of work as the Florence.

It will sew a [illegible] finer thread on the under side than it [illegible]

The needle is more easily adjusted than in any other Machine.

It will sew across the heaviest seams, or from one to more thicknesses of cloth without change of tension or breaking of thread.

It is fully protected and licensed by Elisha Howe Jr., and his Associates, and our own Letters Patent.

To avoid the strain on the eyes, bent posture, close application and fatiguing care, heretofore necessary on a large portion of work done on Sewing Machines we now furnish each Machine with "[illegible] a Self Sewer," which guides the work itself, and is of incalculable value, especially to inexperienced operators.

While possessing the above and many other advantages, the FLORENCE is sold at corresponding prices with other first class Machines.

We refrain from publishing the highly complimentary notices of the Press with which we have been favored, and place our Machine before the public, believing that an intelligent examination of its merits will fully substantiate all that we have claimed for it, and justify the assertion we now make, that it is the best Sewing Machine in the world.

We Warrant every Machine to be all that we claim for it, and will give a written warranty if required.

Agents wanted in all the principal cities and towns on the Pacific Coast. With a small investment of capital a profitable business can soon be established. For Circulars and Samples of Sewing, address

FIRST PREMIUM
FAMILY SEWING MACHINE!
THE GROVER & BAKER
Noiseless Machine
HAS TAKEN THE
FIRST PREMIUM at every State and County Fair held in the United States, where it has been placed in Competition with Any Other Machine
During the Past Three Years.

IT IS THE BEST FAMILY MACHINE
In Existence!
FOR THE FOLLOWING REASONS

It is the most simple in its construction and can be more easily learned than any other machine claiming to be first class.

It can be cleaned and oiled in a few minutes, and without taking to pieces.

It sews from the original spools, and requires no winding of Bobbins or Shuttles, and has a perfect tension on both upper and under threads.

It will sew any material from tissue paper to eight thicknesses of heavy cloth, or harness leather, with no change of tension.

It is the only machine that makes the Double Lock Stitch, each stitch being independent of its neighbor, and will not rip by cutting every fourth stitch.

It will stitch, gather, hem, fell, cord, braid, and besides doing all the work that any other machine can do, it embroiders with a completion in fancy and ornamental work.

It is the only machine that will embroider, making the braid and sewing it on at the same time.

It will gather and sew on at the same time with greater ease and regularity than any other machine.

It makes a stitch that possesses more elasticity than any other, and is the only one that is suitable to sewing flannel or any goods of a loose fabric.

12,000
Of These Machines
HAVE BEEN SOLD ON THIS COAST DURING THE LAST FEW YEARS;
SEVERAL HUNDRED
of which are now
IN USE
IN THIS STATE,
AND IN NO INSTANCE

Have they failed to give satisfaction, a fact which cannot be proven of any other Machine
EVER SOLD ON THIS COAST.

Any machine sold can be returned and the money refunded if it fails to give entire satisfaction to the purchaser.

The Story of Daniel O'Rourke

People may have heard of the renowned adventures of Daniel O'Rourke, but how few are there who know that the cause of all his perils, above and below, was neither more nor less than his having slept under the walls of the Phooka's Tower. I knew the man well; he lived at the bottom of Hungry Hill, just at the right hand side of the road as you go towards Bantry. An old man was he at the time that he told me the story, with gray hair and a red nose; and it was on the [illegible] that I heard it from his own lips, as he sat smoking his pipe under the old poplar, on as fine an evening as ever shone from the sky. I was going to visit the caves in Dursey Island, having spent the morning at Glengariff.

I am often axed to tell it, sir, said he, so that this is not the first time. The master's son, you see, had come from foreign parts, in France and Spain, as young gentlemen used to go before Buonaparte or any such was heard of; and sure enough there was a dinner given to all the people on the ground, gentle and simple, high and low, rich and poor. The ould gentlemen were the gentlemen after all, saving your honor's presence. They'd swear at a body a little, to be sure, and maybe give one a cut of a whip now and then, but we were no losers by it in the end; and they were so easy and civil, and kept such rattling houses, and thousands of welcomes; and there was no grinding for rent, and few agents; and there was hardly a tenant on the estate that did not taste of his landlord's bounty often and often in the year; but now it's another thing. No matter for that, sir, for I'd better be telling you my story.

Well, we had everything of the best, and plenty of it; and we ate, and we drank, and we danced, and the young master, by the same token, danced with Peggy Barry, from the Bohereen—a lovely young couple they were, though they are both low enough now. To make a long story short, I got, as a body may say, the same thing as tipsy almost, for I can't remember ever at all, no ways, how it was I left the place—only I did leave it, that's certain. Well, I thought, for all that, in myself, I'd just step to Molly Cronohan's, the fairy woman, to speak a word about the bracket heifer what was bewitched; and so as I was crossing the stepping-stones of the Ford of Ballyasheenogh, and was looking up at the stars and blessing myself—for why? it was Lady-day—I missed my foot, and souse I fell into the water. "Death alive!" thought I, "I'll be drowned now!" However, I began swimming, swimming away for the dear life, till at last I got ashore somehow or other, but never the one of me can tell how, upon a dissolute island.

I wandered and wandered about there without knowing where I wandered, until at last I got into a big bog. The moon was shining as bright as day, or your fair lady's eyes, sir, (with your pardon for mentioning her,) and I looked east and west, and north and south, and every way, and nothing did I see but bog, bog, bog. I could never find out how I got into it, and my heart grew cold with fear, for sure and certain I was it would be my buryin' place. So I sat down upon a stone which, as good luck would have it, was close by me, and I began to scratch my head and sing the Ullagone—looked up and saw something for all the world as if it was moving down between me and it, and I could not tell what it was. Down it came with a pounce, and looked at me full in the face; and what was it but an eagle! as fine a one as ever flew from the kingdom of Kerry. So he looked at me in the face, and says he to me, "Daniel O'Rourke," says he, "how do you do?" "Very well, I thank you, sir," says I; "I hope you're well;" wondering out of my senses all the time how an eagle came to speak like a Christian.

"What brings you here, Dan?" says he.

"Nothing at all, sir," says I; "only I wish I was safe home again."

"Is it out of the island you want to go, Dan?" says he.

"'Tis, sir," says I. So I up and told him how I had taken a drop too much and fell into the water, how I swam to the island, and how I got into the bog and did not know my way out of it.

"Dan," says he, after a minute's thought, "though it was very improper for you to get drunk on Lady-day, yet, as you are a decent sober man, who 'tends mass well and never flings stones at me or mine, nor cries out after us in the fields—my life for yours," says he, "so get up on my back and grip me well for fear you'd fall off, and I'll fly you out of the bog."

"I am afraid," says I, "your honor's making game of me, for who ever heard of riding a horseback on an eagle before?"

"'Pon the honor of a gentleman," says he, putting his right foot on his breast, "I am quite in earnest—and so now, either take my offer or starve in the bog—besides, I see that your weight is sinking the stone."

It was true enough as he said, for I found the stone every minute going from under me. I had no choice—so thinks I to myself, faint heart never won fair lady, and this is fair persuadence.

"I thank your honor," says I, "for the loan of your civility, and I'll take your kind offer." I therefore mounted upon the back of the eagle and held him tight enough by the throat, and up he flew in the air like a lark. Little I knew the trick he was going to serve me. Up—up—up, God knows how far up he flew.

"Why, then," said I to him—thinking he did not know the right road home—very civilly, because why? I was in his power entirely; "Sir," says I, "please your honor's glory, and with humble submission to your better judgment, if you'd fly down a bit; you're now just over my cabin, and I could be put down there and many thanks to your worship."

"Arrah, Dan," says he, "do you think me a fool? Look down in the next field and don't you see two men and a gun? By my word it would be no joke to be shot this way to oblige a drunken blackguard that I picked off a could stone in a bog."

"Bother you," said I to myself, but I did not speak out, for where was the use? Well, sir, up he kept flying, flying, and I asking him every minute to fly down, and all to no use. "Where in the world are you going to, sir?" says I to him.

"Hold your tongue, Dan," says he; "mind your own business, and don't be interfering with the business of other people."

"Faith, this is my business, I think," says I.

"Be quiet, Dan," says he; so I said no more.

At last where should we come to but to the moon itself. Now you can't see it from this, but there is, or there was in my time, a reaping-hook sticking out of the side of the moon this way (drawing the figure on the ground with the end of his stick).

"Dan," said the eagle, "I'm tired with this long fly—I had no notion 'twas so far."

"And, my Lord," said I, "who in the world axed you to fly so far; was it I? Did not I beg and pray and beseech you to stop half an hour ago?"

"There's no use talking, Dan," said he; "I'm tired bad enough—so you must get off and sit down on the moon until I rest myself."

"Is it sit down on the moon?" said I; "is it upon that little round thing then? Why, then, sure I'd fall off in a minute and be kilt and spilt and smashed all to bits. You are a vile deceiver, so you are."

"Not at all, Dan," said he; "you catch fast hold of the reaping hook that's sticking out of the side of the moon, and 'twill keep you up."

"I won't then," said I.

"May be not," said he, quiet quiet, "if you don't, my man, I shall just give you a shake and one slap of my wing and send you down to the ground, where every bone in your body will be smashed as small as a drop of dew on a cabbage leaf in the morning."

"Why, then, I'm in a fine way," said I to myself, "ever to have come along with the likes of you;" and so giving him a hearty curse in Irish for fear he'd know what I said, I got off his back with a heavy heart, took a hold of the reaping hook and sat down upon the moon, and a mighty cold seat it was, I can tell you that.

When he had me there fairly landed, he turned about to me and said, "Good morning to you, Daniel O'Rourke," said he, "I think I've nicked you fairly now. You robbed my nest last year," ('twas true enough for him, but how he found it out is hard to say,) "and in return you're freely welcome to cool your heels dangling upon the moon like a cockthrow."

"Is that all? and is this the way you leave me, you brute, you?" says I. "You ugly unnatural baste, and is this the way you serve me at last? Bad luck to yourself, with your hooked nose, and to all your breed, you blackguard." 'Twas all to no manner of use: he spread out his great big wings, burst out a laughing, and flew away like lightning. I bawled after him to stop, but I might have called and bawled for ever without his minding me. Away he went, and I never saw him from that day to this—sorrow fly away with him! You may be sure I was in a disconsolate condition, and kept roaring out for the bare grief, when all at once a door opened right in the middle of the moon, creaking on its hinges as if it had not been opened before—I suppose they never thought of greasing 'em—and out there walks who do you think but the man in the moon? I knew him by his bush.

"Good morrow to you, Daniel O'Rourke," said he; "how do you do?"

"Very well, thank your honor," said I; "I hope your honor's well."

"What brought you here, Dan?" said he. So I told him how I was a little overtaken in liquor at the master's, and how I was cast on a dissolute island, and how I lost my way in the bog, and how the thief of an eagle promised to fly me out of it, and how instead of that he flyed me up to the moon.

"Dan," said the man in the moon, taking a pinch of snuff when I was done, "you must not stay here."

"Indeed, sir," says I, "'tis much against my will I'm here at all; but how am I to go back?"

"That's your business," said he; "Dan, mine is to tell you that here you must not stay, so be off in less than no time."

"I'm doing no harm," says I, "only holding on hard by the reaping hook, lest I fall off."

"That's what you must not do, Dan," says he.

"Pray, sir," says I, "may I ask how many you are in family, that you would not give a poor traveller lodging: I'm sure 'tis not so often you're troubled with strangers coming to see you, for 'tis a long way."

"I'm by myself, Dan," says he; "but you'd better let go the reaping hook."

"Faith, and with your leave," says I, "I'll not let go the grip."

"You had better, Dan," says he again.

"Why, then, my little fellow," says I, taking the whole of him in with my eye from head to foot, "there are two words to that bargain, and I'll not budge, but you may if you like."

"We'll see how that is to be," says he; and back he went, giving the door such a great bang after him (for it was plain he was huffed) that I thought the moon and all would fall down with it. Well, I was preparing myself to try strength with him, when back again he comes with the kitchen cleaver in his hand, and without saying a word he gave two bangs to the handle of the reaping hook that was keeping me up, and whap! it came in two.

"Good morning to you, Dan," says the spiteful little old blackguard, when he saw me cleanly falling down with a bit of the handle in my hand: "I thank you for your visit, and fair weather after you, Daniel." I had not time to make any answer to him, for I was tumbling over and over, and rolling and rolling at the rate of a fox hunt. "God help me!" says I, "but this is a pretty pickle for a decent man to be seen in at this time of night: I am now sold fairly." The word was not out of my mouth, when whiz! what should fly by close to my ears but a flock of wild geese; and the old gander, who was their general, turning about his head, cried out to me—"Is that you, Dan?"

I was not a bit daunted now at what he said, for I was by this time used to all kinds of bedevilment, and besides I knew him of old.

"Good morrow to you," says he, "Daniel O'Rourke; how are you in health this morning?"

"Very well, sir," says I, "I thank you kindly," drawing my breath, for I was mightily in want of some. "I hope your honor's the same."

"I think 'tis falling you are, Daniel," says he.

"You may say that, sir," says I.

"And where are you going all the way so fast?" said the gander.

So I told him how I had taken the drop and how I came on the island, and how I lost my way in the bog, and how the thief of an eagle flew me up to the moon, and how the man in the moon turned me out.

"Dan," said he, "I'll save you—put out your hand and catch me by the leg, and I'll fly you home."

"Sweet is your hand in a pitcher of honey, my jewel," says I, though all the time I thought in myself I don't much trust you; but there was no help, so I caught the gander by the leg and away I and the other geese flew after him as fast as hops.

We flew, and we flew, and we flew, until we came right over the wide ocean. I knew it well, for I saw Cape Clear to my right hand, sticking up out of the water. "Oh, my Lord!" said I to the goose—for I thought it best to keep a civil tongue in my head any way—"fly to land if you please!"

"It is impossible, you see, Dan," said he, "for a while, because, you see, we are going to Arabia."

"To Arabia!" said I; "that's surely some place in foreign parts, far away. Oh, Mr. Goose! why, then, to be sure, I'm a man to be pitied among you."

"Whist, whist, you fool," said he, "hold your tongue. I tell you Arabia is a very decent sort of a place, as like West Carbery as one egg is like another, only there is a little more sand there."

Just as we were talking, a ship hove in sight, scudding so beautifully before the wind. "Oh, then, sir!" said I, "will you drop me on the ship, if you please?"

"We are not fair over it," said he.

"We are," said I.

"We are not," said he; "if I dropped you now you would go splash into the sea."

"I would not," says I; "I know better than that, for it is just clean under us, so let me drop at once."

"If you must, you must," said he; "there, take your own way."

And he opened his claw, and faith, he was right! Sure enough, I came down plump into the very bottom of the salt sea! Down to the very bottom I went, and I gave myself up then for ever, when a whale walked up to me, scratching himself after his night's sleep, and looked me full in the face, and never the word did he say, but lifting up his tail he splashed me all over again with the cold salt water till there wasn't a dry stitch upon my whole carcase, and I heard somebody saying—'twas a voice I knew, too—"Get up, you drunken brute, off of that!"—and with that I woke up, and there was July with a tub full of water, which she was splashing all over me—for, rest her soul! though she was a good wife, she never could bear to see me in drink, and had a bitter hand of her own.

"Get up!" said she again; "and of all places in the parish, would no place sarve your turn to lie down but under the old walls of Carrigaphooka? An uneasy resting I am sure you had of it."

And sure enough I had, for I was fairly bothered out of my senses with eagles and men of the moon, and flying ganders and whales driving me through the bog and up to the moon and down to the bottom of the green ocean.

If I was in drink ten times over, long would it be before I'd lie down in the same spot again—I know that.

THE WORLD RENOWNED

SINGER SEWING MACHINES!

MANUFACTORY,
182, 184, 186, 188, 190 and 194 Mott street, New York.

MOTTO—"The Singer Sewing Machines are the only Machines that can Sew all kinds of Cloth and with all kinds of Thread."

Singer's Letter A Family Machine is the best and cheapest Machine in the world for Family Sewing. There is no doubt as to the value of our Machines for manufacturing purposes, but it is only of late that the public began to learn that the essential elements of a Machine best adapted to the heaviest work would also be the elements to be embodied in a Family Machine.

We would ask for our Letter A Machine the attention of Vest Makers and Dress Makers, and all those who want Machines for Light Manufacturing Purposes. They embody the principles of the Manufacturing Machines, making like them the interlocked stitch, and are destined to be as celebrated for FAMILY SEWING and Light Manufacturing purposes, as our Manufacturing Machines are for manufacturing purposes in general.

FAMILY SEWING MACHINES are valuable in proportion to the number of things they can do well. See what ours can do before making a purchase.

☞ All persons requiring information about Sewing Machines, their sizes, prices, working capacities, and the best method of purchasing, can obtain it by sending for a copy of the SINGER MANUFACTURING COMPANY'S ILLUSTRATED PAMPHLET, which is entirely devoted to the subject. It will be sent Gratis.

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS, Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS' TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION! IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it, if only taken in time.

Sold by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle.

GLOUCESTER, March 29, 1864.

Messrs. TILTON & McFARLAND,
Safe Manufacturers, Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen: [illegible] Mr. Lillie, I was induced to purchase of him one of his

So Called "Fire Proof Safes."

On the 15th of February last, a fire occurred in our block which destroyed a number of buildings, and our own with the rest. We trusted our books, papers and all in the safe. After the fire the so-called "safe" was taken from the ruins, and on opening it we found that Everything had been Destroyed.

We send you the safe, with what is left of the papers, and you will see that not one of them is legible or strong enough to sustain its own weight. Having the curiosity to know how our neighbors fared in this fire, we noticed McKenzie & Hardy just opening their safe (TILTON & McFARLAND'S make) and its contents were found to be

In Perfect Condition.

This led us to further investigation, and we found to our astonishment that from the large amount of combustible material in Messrs. McK. & H.'s cellar—such as lard, pork, etc., their safe was subjected to a much greater heat than that of our own, we being in the clothing business and had but little in the cellar. There was another of Lillie's safes here subjected to the same fire being however no better than ours.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient servants,
(Signed.) GEO. L. CHESBORO & CO

DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned to this State, after an absence of one year, during which time he has visited all the principal hospitals of Europe, among them those of Dublin, London and Paris. The following celebrated hospitals of London are among those visited by the Doctor: Guy's, High street, Borough; St. Bartholomew's, Smithfield; St. Mary's, Camb. Place, Pad.; Lock, Harrow road; St. Luke's, Old street; University, Gower street; Westminster, Broad Sanctuary, Charing Cross, Agar street, Strand; London, Whitechapel road, Royal Free, Gray's Inn road; King's College, Portugal street.

DOCTOR GIBBON has also visited Doctors Acton of London, Parker of Birmingham, England, and Ricord of Paris, who are considered the best physicians and surgeons in the world, and whose authority is acknowledged to be the highest in the treatment of Sexual Diseases.

DOCTOR GIBBON has obtained from them their new mode of treatment which cannot be surpassed.

DOCTOR GIBBON has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with new facilities for the alleviation of human suffering.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgence, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying maladies, see that they are cared for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private diseases his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practised by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Doctor Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions for use. For Ten Dollars, sent in registered letter or through Wells, Fargo & Co.
